Hi Everyone!

Summer is here! Looks like the weather will cooperate this year for the Open House (fingers crossed)! As you know, we will be having the Harley-Davidson Demo Truck here filled with 18 different models so all the help we can get with that would be great.

You guys are pros at that by now! It is going to be a great weekend!! Keith is going on an overnight to the National Motorcycle Museum on June 18th and if you are interesting in riding along email Brenda@ukeshd.com for all the details. Also he is doing his big ride out the Smoky Mountains Sept. 10 – 18th. Because of the huge response last year we have to limit the group to about 10 bikes, therefore we are doing a lottery for those interested. If you are interested in adding your name to list let us know. Don't forget about Keith's Rides to Bike Night at the Harley-Davidson Museum on one Thursday a month throughout the summer. It is a nice, fun night! Check the website and emails with exact dates. June 26th will be our bobble head night at the Kingfish game and we will be having a ride down there if anyone has tickets for that game. Please join us! Now get out and ride!

Ride Safe,
The Uke's Team

If anyone has pictures or articles they want in the newsletter, please submit to yldrose07@gmail.com, Thank You!

Greetings from your Head Road Captain,

The riding season is now in full swing and I hope everyone is out there putting some miles on the road. As of this writing we have had the Baraboo Memorial Ride and what a wonderful weekend it was, including some stellar singing. We have also had two My Favorite Place rides. Continue to look to the calendar for a variety of riding opportunities as the season moves forward. I will not be at the upcoming meeting because I will be on the Gold Rush Run.

Upcoming opportunities to ride.
Ukes Open House June 4th & 5th (New bikes WOOHOO!)
Poker Run after the Chapter Meeting on the 12th
My Favorite Place Ride with Stuart on the 18th

More to come. And as always send me pictures from your rides and suggestions for rides/destinations.
Keep the shiny side up!

Safety Article - Riding in the Rain

It is inevitable. No matter how much you check the radar and listen to multiple radio stations for the forecast, you will eventually get caught in the rain on your motorcycle. Whether you're in the group that have been in the rain before, or the one that will be in the future, you should keep in mind some basic riding tips when it's raining.

1. The oil, rubber particles, antifreeze and brake dust that cars leave behind becomes a slimy mess of slippery stuff as rain begins to wash it away. It's best if you can take a break, or delay your departure for the first 20 minutes or so after it starts raining. If it is just a light rain or misting, it could be slippery most of the day so be careful. If it hasn't rained in awhile, there's even more junk on the road that needs to be washed away.

2. Once you do start riding, stay in the left or right third of the road to avoid the oil dripping from the truck in front of you. On curves the road usually is sloped to the inside, so the oily water will drain to the low side and pool by the curb. Since oil floats on top of the wet road, you can watch for the rainbow color sheen or drops beading up on the roadway and avoid it.

3. Once the road has been washed clean, it has about 80 percent of the friction of a nice dry highway, so that means you still need to be about 20 percent more cautious! Start by slowing down and making gradual changes in speed and direction. Avoid the sudden stop if possible by anticipating the actions of the cars in front of you, stop lights, etc... Use more rear brake than normal so both front and rear share the braking equally. Do your braking while still in a straight line, and then ease into turns. Downshift smoothly by engaging the clutch slower than usual.

4. Painted or plastic road markings, metal manhole covers and railroad tracks are a piece of cake when dry, but become very slick when wet. Watch out for wet leaves in the fall piled up along the curbs too. Adjust your line when crossing slippery areas like railroad tracks to as close to 90 degrees as possible. Brick streets and graded bridges are also more hazardous in the rain.

5. Hydroplaning is when the water doesn't escape through the grooves of the tire fast enough, so the tire lifts up on top of the water and loses traction. If your tires are worn, they don't have the ability to channel the water away to either side. The harder it rains the more water on the pavement for the tire to channel away. Wider tires have more contact surface during dry weather, but can be more prone to Hydroplaning. Improper inflation is also a factor and can increase the chance of Hydroplaning. If you do feel the bike start to wander, slowly ease off the throttle and keep the front wheel straight until you find the speed needed to maintain control.

Ride Safe!

Hey there Folks!
